IN THE GOOD OLD DAYS

FOURTH OF JULY—July 4th, 1880 did not come and go without some fanfare—in fact, there was quite a celebration at a cost of $391.95 in a report of the finance committee consisting of P. A. Hays, W. W. Jones, W. E. Stevenson and J. F. Smith. Among the expense items listed were: Hotel bill for orators $1.50; Carriages and horses $8.50; Band wagon $6.00; alcohol 60c; tin cups 45c; teams for cannon $2.00; fireworks $140.50; Powder $4.50; Brass band $40.00; Music Mozart Club $15.00. According to THE BANNER—"The 4th of July celebration Monday was, upon the whole a success, about three thousand people participating. The Brick Chapel Sunday School took the premium, a twenty-dollar gold piece, as the largest school in the procession. Senator Voorhees spoke before dinner, occupying about twenty minutes, dealing in his usual platitudes, and saying nothing worth remembering."

BOOK SALE—J. K. Langdon's Book Store was having a sensational book sale including many of the classics from "Baron Munchausen" to "Pilgrims Progress" and the prices must have attracted many buyers. Some prices quoted are: Micauley's "Life of Frederick the Great" marked down from $1.25 to 3c; Carlyle's "Life of Robert Burns" reduced from $1.25 to 3c; Private "Theatricals" priced at 2c; "Leaves From the Dairy" priced at 3c.

Many At Dance Friday Night

It was believed that the crowd Friday night was the largest that has yet attended this annual dance.

SALLY NOT BROKE

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 8.—(UP)—Entertainer Sally Rand may appear a bit bare at times, but she can still pull plenty of fans. In denying reports from California, the fan dancer said that she is neither "flat" nor "broke."

In fact, Miss Rand said that she has $60,000 in cash with her right now.

KOOKEN APPOINTED TO POLICE BOARD

INDIANAPOLIS, March 8.—Governor Gates has appointed Don L. Kookan, assistant director of the Indiana university institute of criminal law administration, to the state police board, succeeding Clarence U. Grancie-pacher of Jasper, whose four-year term expired Thursday.

A native of Garrett, Kookan joined the force as a detective and a year later became lieutenant in charge of training activities. He instituted the present state police training system.

During the 1920's he was assistant to Alexander Jamie, chief of the famous secret six which warred against Chicago gangs.

WINS MONON ESSAY CONTEST

Miss Carolyn Ann Connerly and Miss Glennie Martin, Clinton Center high school students as they left the Monon station here Friday for a wonder trip to Chicago and thence back to French Lick Springs before returning home. Her prize winning story is as follows:

The Monon Railway was one of the earliest ironways constructed in Indiana. It was first known as the New Albany and Salem Railroad connecting Louisville and Chicago. At the time when work was begun, waterways were the chief and most important means of general communication. The Ohio River was the main channel of commerce.

The farmers of Indiana were raising immense crops of corn, but there was no way of getting it to market except by feeding it to hogs or making it into whisky. The hogs had to be driven on foot to the Ohio River or butchered and gold at New Orleans. Much of the business that formerly found its way by wagon or hoof now found an easier method. Within a few months after the arrival of the first train, corn and wheat doubled in price; and articles that were imported became cheaper.

New towns developed along the line, and many villages, now standing, were the result of this railroad. As each of these towns became the shipping point for the livestock, grain, and whatever was to be exported came to that point; thus the towns prospered accordingly.

Manufacturers appeared, stores that formerly mixed dry goods, groceries, grain, hardware, earthenware, and books in their stock began to select and concentrate their stock to one or two classes of their former merchandise. Towns developed along the railways instead of along the streams and became a shipping point for the produce of the surrounding country. This had a great influence in developing the fine farming areas of central and northern Indiana because these regions were productive and level. Construction was fairly easy; therefore conditions were inviting for the railroad to come through. These things working together have to a large degree made the progress that we enjoy today.

During the early stages in the development of the Monon Railway in Indiana, travel was not very rapid or convenient. It took more than one day of travel to go very far. The line followed the easiest and most natural ways. This was particularly due to the fact that it was so hard to blast through hard rock or bridge the wide streams.

The first tracks were made of strap iron spiked on wooden beams laid longitudinally across the ties; later the "T" rail was substituted with angle-couplers. Great improvements were made in the roadbed and rolling stock. Substantial roadbeds of gravel and broken stone were also constructed. Grades were cut down, curves were straightened, and many other improvements were made. Steel rails were replaced by iron ones; engines were made heavier and stronger; freight cars were put into use; and bridges of steel and stone took the place of wooden ones.

During the early days much of the passenger traffic being local and the trains moving slowly with frequent and protracted stops, it gave opportunity for friendly conversation in the cars. Travelers talked freely. Talk took a wide range on religious questions, politics, markets, and local occurrences. Newspapers were scarce, high-priced, and restricted in their news columns. Each day people from the surrounding country came out to see the train, its passengers, and each other.

The Monon Railway played an influential part in connection with the sociological development of the country. At almost every little station, v. s. some educational institution. Four of the chief colleges—Indiana University, at Bloomington, DePauw University at Greencastle, Wabash College at Crawfordsville, and Purdue University at Lafayette—were seated at points now more accessible by the building of the road. The presidents of the colleges were given free passes.

A significant effort of the railroad's contribution to civilization is shown by the distinctive character of the population in its territory. Most of their ancestors were from the southern states. Many of them were "back-woodsy" and the common butt of ridicule. The Monon Railroad introduced teachers who cultivated the talents of these people from whom have emerged many preachers, statesmen, orators, doctors, and lawyers who astonished the inhabitants of other regions that had greater natural advantages.

The modernizing of the railway management took place about the time that the Monon company extended its branch line to Indianapolis. The branch to West Baden and French Lick also affected the contributing customs and tastes of the inhabitants. The Oolitic stone quarries extending along the tracks for nearly thirty-five miles have called the world's attention to this section.

The Monon Railway has proved a great advantage to the coal miners of southern Indiana. Coal was so difficult to transport from one place to another; therefore wood was used. Since railroads have become so important, coal can be easily loaded and shipped all over the state.

During the war servicemen, stationed at the Great Lakes or Indianapolis, might not have been able to get home on just a week-end pass, if it hadn't been for the trains. Wives, mothers, and sweethearts of servicemen could be with their loved ones within a short time.

The Monon Railway has developed from crude wooden rails, slow engines, and uncomfortable coaches to the new Diesel driven trains with air-conditioned, streamlined coaches. These engines are capable of moving heavier tonnage over greater distances in quicker time.

TRUMAN WILL ASK CONGRESS TO AID GREECE

PRESIDENT PUTS FINISHING TOUCH ON MONDAY'S MESSAGE

WASHINGTON, Mar. 8 (UP)—President Truman put final touches today on the message in which he will ask congress Monday to speed aid to Greece.

Official quarters said the President would request a $200,000,000 loan for the hard pressed nation as well as arms and ammunition for the Greek army.

Reflecting grave concern over Greece's plight, Mr. Truman abruptly cancelled plans for a 15-day Caribbean trip to watch fleet maneuvers and decided to remain at the White House to give the crisis his full attention.

The President's message will be reviewed at the White House early Monday morning by congressional leaders of both parties. It probably will be sent to Capitol Hill the same day.

Mr. Truman called off his trip to the Caribbean after discussing the Greek situation with his cabinet. The consensus was that the United States must act immediately to stave off the possibility that the tottering Greek government soon might fall to Communism.

Some cabinet members were said to feel that prompt action by this country was needed also as a measure of support for U. S. British and French negotiators at the Moscow conference of foreign ministers. It was pointed out that the President's departure for a vacation at this time would tend to minimize the gravity of the situation.

LEWIS GETS NOTICE FROM GOVERNMENT

NO CONTRACT TALKS UNTIL HE CANCELS
STRIKE THREAT

WASHINGTON, March 8.—(UP)—The government put John L. Lewis on notice today that it would make no move to promote new soft coal contract talks until he cancels his March 31 strike threat, as ordered by the Supreme Court.

Secretary of Interior J. A. Krug, federal mine boss, said that until Lewis acts, "we are not going to make any move toward negotiations with either miners or mine owners."

In a radio broadcast (Mutual's "Meet The Press"), Krug said the Supreme Court order had "temporarily reduced the threat of a strike on June 30" when government control of the mines is scheduled to end.

He went on to say, however, that so long as the possibility of a strike remained the government would stand ready to "handle any situation."

Krug hinted that if necessary the administration might ask Congress to extend the government's powers to seize and hold property in labor disputes beyond June 30, the present expiration date.

"I cannot say at this time whether or not we will ask Congress to extend that power," Krug said.

Krug's statement came as another top government official—Attorney General Tom C. Clark—moved to force Lewis into line quickly.

Clark filed a petition asking the high court to waive its usual 25-day waiting period and send its decision to Federal District Court for immediate effectuation. Arguments on Clark's petition will be held Monday.

If the petition is granted, Lewis will have just five days to withdraw his strike threat or face stiffer penalties and a permanent injunction forbidding a soft coal walkout.

The Supreme Court upheld a district court's contempt convictions of Lewis and his United Mine Workers (AFL). It lowered the $5,000,000 fine levied against the union to $700,000 but ruled that unless Lewis withdraws his notice terminating the union's contract with the government as of March 31, the higher fine will stand.

Lewis told the Senate Labor Committee that he was ready and willing to negotiate a new wage agreement with either the government or the mine owners at any time.

HOSPITALS UP TO VET REQUIREMENTS

Veterans Administration hospital facilities in Indiana meet the requirements of state veterans more adequately and with less delay than in any of the other three states—Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin—comprising the Branch Seven area, VA reports show at the end of January.

There were no veterans in Indiana with service-connected disorders awaiting admission to hospitals and there were only 81 applications awaiting processing in non-service-connected ailments, none of which were of an emergency nature.

Illinois had 319 non-service-connected applications for admission pending while Wisconsin had 1,292 such applications.

The VA has three hospitals in operation in the state. The hospital on Cold Springs Road, in Indianapolis, with a bed capacity for 345 patients, had a turnover of 340 patients during January. The hospitals at Fort Benjamin Harrison has a 500 bed capacity but has an average of 300 each month. During January 466 patients were admitted and 333 were discharged. Both are general medical and surgery hospitals.

The VA hospital at Ft. Benjamin Harrison has been able to admit all applications, though four of its wards are not open due to lack of personnel. There is a need for 32 nurses and 45 attendants and a number of specialists.

The third hospital is the VA mental institution at Marion which has a bed capacity of 1-

THE CHEF'S CORNER

Well, I simply cannot neglect mentioning our salads. We receive so many complimentary remarks not only on the variety but the way they are displayed on ice and kept so fresh all the time. Our customers say these salads are a temptation every time they dine here as it is always so hard to select one. Could it be the mayonnaise that we make ourselves with only the freshest eggs, vegetable oils and seasonings? We will tell you more about our mayonnaise some other time. It's an interesting story.

Dinner was late that night

Dinner was late that night for little Linda. A swollen Susquehanna River had washed away her home—and everything in it.

But the Red Cross was there to help her and all the homeless families...

... to supply food, clothing, shelter for the night;

... to extend comfort, emergency medical aid, care for the injured;

... to help a stricken people restore their homes.

Every week, disaster strikes somewhere in our nation. Always in catastrophe—flood, fire, explosion, tornado or hurricane—your Red Cross is on the job.

You want to do your share to help your American Red Cross carry on in 1947.

Give—give generously and gladly to the "greatest mother of them all!"

GIVE—so your RED CROSS can carry on!

COME TO CHURCH SUNDAY

WORKING THE WORKS

A. Newby, Minister.

The 9th chapter of St. John the 2nd verse, Jesus was in this question, Who did sin? The question was asked of his parents, that he was blind? The question was answered in the 3rd verse, "Neither hath this man sinned, nor his parents; but that the Father of God should be made manifest." The nub of the wheel is not the man, but the man's blindness, the works of God.

THE WORKS OF GOD.

There is a great lack today in the schools and the church of that of material provision. Most of our homes have a supply of furnishings; schools in general are beautiful and well equipped. The churches are well provided with books and other suitable things. Nevertheless, in the light of all of these provisions, the "works of God" are manifested in general, in the church and His works are the right emphasis. One and only one solution, namely that of putting God in everything. The Holy Spirit tells us to seek First the Kingdom of God and His righteousness—God first in the school—God first in the church—God first in the community. The "works of God" can be made manifest by relegating them to a secondary position. Genuine Christians of all ages have been those who have put God first in their business, in their pleasure and finally in their whole lives.

Quick glimpse into the life of a "Works of God" have not been manifested in greater manner, will reveal that it is not a flaw in the "works of God" themselves but weakness has been that there are so few who are willing to work the works of God. Jesus in St. John the 9th chapter the 4th verse: "I must work the works of God." The "works of God" are not automatic. Some are required to invest. The home will never be a Christian home unless the mother and father are willing to work the works of God. The church will always divert from religion unless there are individuals who will lead in the direction toward the works of God. The church will be an empty steeple-house unless its ministers are interested in seeing the works of God manifested. Society in general has been failing lower and lower. God has been crowded out and liquor has been invited in. Womanhood has fallen into the whirl of drunkenness and the clutch of tobacco. Virtue has been imperiled as a consequence. This condition can only be rectified by a mighty wave of old time heart-felt religion that will place God first in everything.

Now in the last place—"What are the 'Works of God'?" They are the release of Divine power with the arrow pointing toward mankind. The whole plan of God's redemption is directed toward mankind. In this particular reference, mentioned in this chapter, it was not only a man but a blind man. Then the work of God, mentioned was to make a blind man see. This may serve as a pattern for all works of God. Jesus changed Peter and John from fishermen of "fish" to fishermen of "men." Mary Magdalene was forgiven of a delinquent life and changed to a woman of renown. All who have let Christ come into their hearts are changed beings. The blind man testified and said, "whereas I was once blind—now I see." The touch of God changed him from blindness to clear vision. God can take bad men and women and change them to good and virtuous souls.

In conclusion, there lived a sinful, discouraged little woman in Pittsburgh, Pa. Her husband was a drunkard and life seemed to hold nothing for her any longer. She was the mother of three fine children but happiness did not abide under that roof. She decided, one night to end it all. Consequently, without telling the children why, she kissed them all and finally came to the bed of the little infant and pulled it to her bosom, then after placing a kiss on its little face laid it down and started for the door. She paused a moment and went back and repeated the action. Finally she opened the door, went to the corner drug store and purchased a small bottle of poison. She started to a steep precipice but while going she came in front of a little church where the lights were shining and a beautiful voice was heard, in song. She paused a moment, decided to go in and sit on the back seat. She remained for the sermon and the minister preached Christ and him crucified. She came during the invitation and gave up all of her plans and opened her heart's door to Christ. Consequently, she returned back home to be a Christian mother to her precious little children. Letting the "works of God" come in will change everything. The night cometh, when no man can work. Don't wait too long. Be in time!

NEWS in the WORLD of RELIGION

From world-famed Old South (Congregational) Church in Boston, Mass., to the chapels and mine compounds of Johannesburg, South Africa, is a far jump and a great gap. But that is the change just made by the Rev. and Mrs. Lee LeRoy Bergsman and their two small children. The associate pastor of the famed church has accepted a missionary appointment under the Congregational Christian Churches and will become the supervisor and counselor to African pastors in one of the great inter-racial and inter-racial tension points of the world. Mr. Bergsman will also be liaison officer between the native schools and teachers, scattered through Johannesburg and its mining outskirts, and the Department of Education in the Transvaal. There are more than 100 languages spoken by the Africans who pour into this mining area.

Alarmed at the shortage of teachers in the public schools of America because of the low pay provided in most states, the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America has joined in the appeal that federal funds be provided as a subsidy for teachers so as to overcome "the educational handicap under which many children and youth suffer because of the economic level of the communities in which they reside." But the Council urges these safeguards in the use of funds: none to be used so as to discriminate against a minority racial group; no imposition of federal control in educational policy; funds to be used only for such schools as the laws of the several states make eligible for state funds.

The formation of a New York Chapter of "Friends of Okinawa" is announced by the Rev. Garland E. Hopkins, of Washington, D. C., provisional national president of the organization, formerly a U. S. Army Chaplain on Okinawa, and now on the staff of the Board of Missions of the Methodist church, at 150 Fifth Avenue, New York City. Elected to head the New York group is another former Army chaplain, Frank L. Titus, of 281 Fourth Avenue, New York City, who participated in the initial landings on Okinawa. The purpose of the movement is to promote a wider interest and understanding of the economic and cultural needs of a people who were first to fall victims of Japanese expansion," says Mr. Hopkins. "Seventy-five years of exploitation, coupled with the devastation of the war years, entitles the people of Okinawa to consideration and care which have not been forthcoming." A special appeal to join is being directed to former G. I.'s who saw duty on Okinawa.

The American Bible Society is now printing 500,000 copies of a paper-covered New Testament in Japanese for early shipment to Japan. During 1946 the Society sent to Japan, through the chaplains of the United States Army, 250,000 New Testaments and 329,000 brief portions in Japanese, and 128,990 New Testaments in English.

Within two months after permission was received from the U. S. government to permit the shipping of private relief to Hungary, more than 600 tons of goods, used clothing, shoes, diaper materials, seeds and small theological libraries were sent in by Church World Service—all contributed by American churches, reports Dr. Stewart Herman, American staff member of that agency. They were distributed in Hungary under the direction of Dr. Lazla Pap, Hungarian churchman. According to Dr. Herman, about 20 per cent of Hungary's people are reduced to beggary and near-starvation and only 10 per cent have the means of purchasing what food they need.

Eleven of the thirteen Christian colleges, maintained by American and British missionary societies in China, fell into the hands of the Japanese and of puppets during the World War, and it will cost at least $15,000 to repair the damage sustained and to make them useable for their educational purposes, a recent survey shows. According to the Associated Boards for Christian Colleges in China (New York), while only a dozen college buildings were razed, most of the others were looted of doors, windows, locks, plumbing, fixtures, movable sections, furniture, supplies and equipment. Hangchow Christian College lost its entire Chinese library, perhaps the most valuable in the nation; other libraries lost most of their books; and the laboratories fared even worse, practically all equipment being removed. The main building of Hwa Nan College burned in Foochow while the institution was "in exile" 120 miles up the Min River. The war over, the temporary buildings used during the exile were dismantled, made into rafts and shipped down the river and re-erected on the old campus.

FARM NOTES

Making the early produce market may mean the difference between profit and loss. For that necessary good start, an efficient hotbed can be the answer.

The hotbed provides a much longer growing season and permits such crops as head lettuce, cauliflower, and early cabbage, to mature in the spring before the approach of hot weather. It also provides an early start for the garden flowers.

Hotbeds should not be confused with cold frames. The latter are heated by the sun, but the hotbed is supplied with heat by the use of fermenting manures, steam or hot water and recently electrically heated units have become more popular. Information on these units may be had from public service companies.

Hotbeds, as a rule, belong only in the set-up of the commercial gardener who sets out thousands of plants, yet each year requests for directions for their use from home gardeners are received. The home gardener will be wise to buy his plants from a reliable commercial grower. If he gardens extensively, he may buy flats of seedlings grown in the green house and transplant into cold frames, spacing them three inches each way. At least four weeks are required to grow good stocky plants in the cold frame.

Often times it is better to buy a few dozen plants to provide the table with early tomatoes, eggplants or peppers and grow the crop for canning by direct field seeding of the tomato seed or similar plants.

The Purdue University Agricultural Extension bulletin, "Hotbed Construction and Management," No. 270, gives structural details and suggestions on culture. Copies are available, free, from the office of the county agricultural agent of the university.

Many progressive farmers are mechanizing their farms and have recently provided machine sheds which include a work shop. In this shop equipment today, there is often an arc welder which the farmer is learning to use efficiently for repairing farm machinery and for rebuilding and constructing new farming equipment.

This shop is usually on the farm that is equipped with modern appliances, designed to save time and labor. A time saving piece of equipment that can be made by use of the arc welder is the "gateless" gate.

Directions for such a gate as given by the engineer, are as follows: Dig a pit about eight feet long, six feet wide and a foot or so deep across a lane or road. A six-inch concrete curb or wall is built around the inside of the pit with about six, five-inch by six-foot channel or I beams which are imbedded in the concrete. The tops of the beams should be about two inches below the surface of the road. Two-inch pipe is then welded at spaces of four inches, center to center across the beams. A deflector slanted to a nearby fence post completes this gate which is always open to vehicles but is always closed to livestock.
